

Construction Defense and Consulting

The lawyers in the construction group at Wilkins Patterson provide consulting services to their clients relating to all facets of the construction industry. These services include contract drafting and negotiation, bidding, OSHA consulting, and working on liens and stop payment issues.

The construction group at Wilkins Patterson also includes attorneys who are experienced in litigating these specialized claims. Our attorneys represent general contractors, developers, sub-contractors, architects, engineers, and insurers in pursuing and defending construction claims. Our construction attorneys rely not only upon their litigation skills, but also their technical and industry knowledge relating to the construction industry. They have handled claims involving delay and disruption, breach of warranty, defective design, safety violations, and a variety of breach of contract claims.
